WASHINGTON SAYS IT'S RAISING HYDROCARBON EXPORTS

US seeks bigger share in India's energy market

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New York, September 26

OIL DIPLOMACY

- US says India has long sought to diversify its energy sources amid growing energy needs
- Trump's new sanctions law gives him authority to impose tariffs of up to 100% on buyers of Russian oil and gas, including India
- US official says the legislation gives Trump a new tool, but its signing does not mean the tariffs will be imposed immediately
- National security waiver in the law could provide the US president flexibility in implementing the measures, the official said

INDIA, WITH MASSIVE energy needs, has for a long time been exploring ways to diversify its energy sources, and the US is looking to meet those demands, a senior State Department official has said.

Last week, US President Donald Trump signed into law the 'Lindsey O Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act of 2026', which authorises him to impose tariffs of up to 100% on countries buying Russian oil and gas, including China and India. The law is named after late Senator Lindsey Graham, who had proposed a sanctions bill imposing 500% tariffs on countries for buying Russian oil.

Responding to a question on the bill and India's response about "potential implications" for the bilateral relationship, the official said that the US Congress took a pretty hard approach, especially publicly.

"India has been looking for a long time to diversify its energy sources. They're a country that has massive energy needs" the official said.

"You had members of Congress calling out India in particular, so of course India has to respond. We understand that. They have a domestic constituency, as do we. Like, there is no sort of hard feelings on any of that kind of activity." The official told PTI that the US Congress passed a bill that gave Trump a new tool in his toolbox.

"That doesn't necessarily mean he deploys it tomorrow, but he has the opportunity to. His focus is on ending this war. It's been something he campaigned on and something he's been dedicated to from the beginning," he said.

"We're looking for our friends, especially like India, to help support that effort. But I think you'll have to stay tuned on how the bill gets implemented. But there is a broad national security waiver, so you can imagine also the president, there's a scenario, the president uses that as well," he added.

Noting that "unfortunately" for a long time, Venezuelan and Iranian sources were cut off, "the options were very limited", he said.

"Now, with Trump's incredibly successful operation in Venezuela, we are moving into a better position that countries like India are going to be able to get access to that market," he added.

Pointing out that the "Indians are very interested", the official said the country used to have refineries in Venezuela but it is very complicated to get those back up and running, given the damage the Nicolas Maduro regime did to the industry. "We are looking to also become a huge source of India's energy needs. We're increasing our hydrocarbon exports," the official said adding that the US is now the largest exporter of LPG, and second for LNG.

"The demands are great, and the needs for oil are there. We are looking for alternatives," the official said adding that these are conversations that happen frequently, including between External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar and US State Secretary Marco Rubio and they will continue. "But I would say before even the war, India had been looking to diversify when it came to energy for a long time. It's not a new concept. We just need to expedite it faster," the US official said.

Captive coal plants asked to maximise output

THE GOVERNMENT HAS directed 112 captive coal-fired power plants with installed capacity of at least 50 MW to operate at maximum capacity from October 1 through December 31, amid expectations of higher electricity demand in the coming months.

The power ministry issued the order under Section 11 of the Electricity Act, which empowers the government to direct generators to operate their plants under extraordinary circumstances.

Considering the prevailing demand-supply scenario and the expected rise in electricity demand in the coming months, power ministry is undertaking various measures to ensure adequate supply of electricity to consumers, the ministry said.

The generators will also have to offer surplus electricity remaining after meeting their own captive requirements through power exchanges, in accordance with applicable market regulations and procedures. The 112 facilities listed in the annexure include captive generating units associated with companies across sectors such as steel, aluminium, cement, petroleum, fertilisers, paper and chemicals. The list includes facilities of Tata Steel, Vedanta, Hindalco Industries, JSW Steel, UltraTech Cement, Indian Oil and NALCO.

The generators have also been directed to maintain adequate coal stocks to ensure fuel availability and enable maximum generation during the three-month period. ANI
